CROSS-CULTURAL MARKETING CERTIFICATION

Culture is a formidable force. It can either propel or thwart your brand strategy. Many brands fall short in effectively navigating the cultural landscape, often relying on fleeting trends rather than deeper cultural insights. In today's digital age, where cultural bubbles are perpetually accessible through technology, the ability to decipher consumer culture is more critical than ever.

This comprehensive programme is designed to equip marketers and brand strategists with the tools to decode cultural signals and leverage them to their advantage. Emphasising the semiotics of marketing communications, the programme delves into the profound underlying cultural forces that shape consumer behaviour.
